in this major theoretical statement the author offers a new and provocative interpretation of the institutional transformations associated with modernity we do not as yet he argues live in a post modern world rather the distinctive characteristics of our major social institutions in the closing period of the twentieth century express the emergence of a period of high modernity in which prior trends are radicalised rather than undermined a post modern social universe may eventually come into being but this as yet lies on the other side of the forms of social and cultural organization which currently dominate world history in developing an account of the nature of modernity giddens concentrates upon analyzing the intersections between trust and risk and security and danger in the modern world both the trust mechanisms associated with modernity and the distinctive risk profile it produces he argues are distinctively different from those characteristic of pre modern social orders this book build upon the author s previous theoretical writings and will be of fundamental interest to anyone concerned with giddens overall project however the work covers issues which the author has not previously analyzed and extends the scope of his work into areas of pressing practical concern this book will be essential reading for second year undergraduates and above in sociology politics philosophy and cultural studies

since becoming director of the London School of Economics in 1997, Anthony Giddens has played a leading public role, particularly as Prime Minister Tony Blair's sociology guru. This text explains who Giddens is and discusses his work.

Social life is in a constant process of change and sociology cannot afford to stand still. Sociology today is theoretically diverse, covering a huge range of subjects and drawing on a broad array of research methods. Central to this endeavour is the use of core concepts and ideas which allow sociologists to make sense of societies, though our understanding of these concepts is constantly evolving and changing. This clear and jargon-free book introduces a careful selection of essential concepts that have helped to shape sociology and others that continue to do so, going beyond brief dictionary-style definitions. Anthony Giddens and Philip W. Sutton provide an extended discussion of each concept, which sets it into historical and theoretical context, explores its main meanings in use, introduces some relevant criticisms, and points readers to its ongoing development in contemporary research and theorizing. Organized in ten thematic sections, the book offers a portrait of sociology through its essential concepts, ranging from capitalism, identity, and deviance to citizenship, the environment, and intersectionality. It will be essential reading for all those new to sociology as well as those seeking a reliable route map for a rapidly changing world.

This book is built upon a series of critical encounters with major figures in classical and present-day social and political thought. The volume offers not only a challenging critique of major traditions of social and political analysis but unique insights into the ideas which Anthony Giddens had developed over the past two decades.

Anthony Giddens is widely recognized as one of the most important sociologists of the post-war period. This is the first full-length work to examine Giddens' social theory. It guides the reader through Giddens' early attempt to overcome the duality of structure and agency he saw as a major failing of social theories of modernity. His attempt to resolve the problem can be regarded as the key to the development of his landmark structuration theory. The book is the most complete and thorough assessment of Giddens' work currently available. It incorporates insights from many different perspectives into his theory of structuration, his work on the formation of cultural identities, and the fate of the nation-state. This far-reaching work also touches on issues such as the transformation of modern intimacy and sexuality and the fate of politics in late modern society.

Anthony Giddens is arguably the world's leading sociologist in this controversial contribution to the Giddens debate. Stjepan Mestrovic takes up and criticizes the major themes of his work, particularly the concept of high modernity as opposed to postmodernity and his attempted construction of a synthetic tradition based on human agency and structure testing giddens theories against what is happening in the real world from genocide in africa to near secession in quebec mestrovic discerns in the construction of synthetic traditions not the promise of freedom held out by giddens but rather the ominous potential for new forms of totalitarian control
